We came up on the bus, singing hymns all the way. Gran soaked out in a blue felt hat that hadn't seen the light of day, since Aunty Gwennie's wedding. The monk dressed all in white pulled the string, and the velvet cloth had fallen away to reveal the statue. After the Archbishop said the blessing we all prayed. And then we ate our picnic lunch of ham sandwiches, welsh cakes, Mam had cooked enough to feed the entire congregation, and stewed tea out of a flask. I can still hear Gran saying "She is beautiful, Our Lady of Penrhys".
